

Streams of living waters

Curse is the man, not bless
Who trust in human beings
He seeks his strength in flesh
Success by worldly means

Those who can't compete
And even beg to eat
He places under his feet
And blames for their defeat

As for those who weep
There's no time to console
His council is not cheep
His judgements bought and sold

In this life only, he has hope
Invested all his treasure
No need for faith to cope
For greed is now his pleasure

But in God, we shall trust
In Him, we place our worth
Without Him, we are dust
A salt and empty earth

Blessed sons and daughters
Streams of living waters
