

For those of you who were present at the closing Liturgy last Sunday for St. Mary's Assumption, I ask your indulgence.

Many of the words of this homily are the same as last week.

But, they are also entirely different, because they are being preached and heard this week in the context of the Closing Liturgy of Blessed Sacrament Church.

As we celebrate this liturgy, we experience a whole range of thoughts and feelings.

As I began to prepare this homily, the question occurred to me, if Jesus were with us here today, what would he say to us?

I began to think of things he said to the people of his time.

I certainly do not pretend that I can speak for Jesus, but I can imagine what his words might be:

Peace be with you.

Do not let your hearts be troubled. You have faith in God, have faith also in me.

I am with you.

I will be with you always.

Love one another.

What is Jesus saying to you today?

What words of comfort do you hear?

The Eucharist is at the heart of our lives as members of the Body of Christ.

And we have come to celebrate that Eucharist, and the closing rituals within the context of that Liturgy.

I would pray that our whole time in this church today, and all that we celebrate here, will be a homily for us.

I truly believe that we will be fed, nourished, and strengthened in the Eucharist, and that we will find in the Closing Rituals a true celebration of the life of Blessed Sacrament Parish.

May we allow the Lord Jesus to speak to us, touch our hearts, and give us comfort.

Broadway Bound is the third play in Neil Simon's trilogy about his coming of age in a Jewish household in New York.

At one point in the play, Eugene casually sits on a corner of the family's dining room table. His mother Blanche immediately corrects him:

Are you crazy sitting on my dining room table like that? I never want to see you show disrespect for this table!

My grandfather made this table with his very own hands for my grandmother.

Over 52 years she had this table.

When I was a little girl, I=d go to her house, and she would let me polish it.

I didn't know it was work - I thought it was fun, maybe because we did it together . . .

This table you eat on means everything. It=s the one time in the day when the whole family is together.

This is where you share things - people who eat out all the time don=t get to be a family.

When I=m gone and you and your Josie get married, this will be your table.

The table of the Eucharist is our table. No matter which church building we are in, the Eucharistic table is our table.

Today we focus on this table, specifically this table at Blessed Sacrament church.

It is where we gather as family to celebrate the sacred meal we call Eucharist.

This table is very important for us.

What Blanche said about her dining room table applies to our Eucharistic table.

This table is the center of our life as the family of Blessed Sacrament Parish.

We come to this table sometimes as joyful people.

We come to the Eucharistic table sometimes as broken people.

We have celebrated the entrance into eternal life of many of our families and friends at this table, and so have shared moments of deep sadness and many tears.

At our table we have prayed for people who have been sick or injured.

We have celebrated the Sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick, asking God=s healing and comforting touch.

We have celebrated the forgiveness of sins here.

We have received new members into our Church.

We have celebrated Baptisms, Confirmations, First Communions, Marriages, and Marriage Anniversaries.

Here we have been strengthened when weak, comforted when sorrowful, healed when suffering.

Here we have met one another, gathered to praise God, to ask his favors, to thank him for his generous gifts, to hear his word.

In Blanche=s words:

This table we eat on means everything. It=s the one time when the whole family is together.

This is where we share things.

In our Closing Ritual we will celebrate all that has happened at this table, praising and thanking God for his presence and blessings.

We will also celebrate that the family of many generations that has gathered around this table is now going to move.

Although we will not have this particular physical table with us, we will still have the table of the Eucharist.

The table of the Eucharist is our table. No matter which church building we are in, the Eucharistic table is our table.

And so, we carry with us the whole history of the family of Blessed Sacrament.

But, this physical Eucharistic Table is also going to live on.

During the earthquake of January 12, 2010, the Immaculate Conception Parish in Cite Soleil, Haiti, completely collapsed.

The parish is served by the Salesians of Don Bosco.

On the Monday after Thanksgiving, the Salesians are going to come and pack most of the contents of this church, and ship them to this parish in Haiti, so that they can be used in the parish chapel of St. Paul.

So, "The Chapel", as Blessed Sacrament was first known, will continue to live on.

Another family, the Family of Immaculate Conception, will have their own Eucharistic Table.

We are all, through our baptism, members of the family of God.

God is our father. Jesus is our brother.

We are sisters and brothers in the Lord.

Since the linking of our three parishes in 2007, our local family has expanded into the Community of Blessed Sacrament + St. Mary's.

Now, we are called to enter into a new relationship as the parish of Our Lady of the Eucharist.

The table of the Eucharist is our table.

The physical table may be different, but the table of the Eucharist is the same no matter where we are, Hughestown, Pittston, or Cite Soleil, Haiti.

It is where we gather as family to celebrate the sacred meal we call Eucharist.

This table is very important for us.

What Blanche said about her dining room table applies to ours.

The Eucharistic table has been the center of our life as the family of Blessed Sacrament Parish.

The Eucharistic table will be the center of our life as the family of Our Lady of the Eucharist.

It is where we will continue to gather, to meet, to be fed, to welcome one another, to continue to be what the gathering around this table has made us.

And we will strive to build upon what we already have, and continue to grow in what it means to be the Parish Family of Our Lady of the Eucharist.

Let us pray:

Lord Jesus Christ, we worship you living among us in the sacrament of your body and blood.

May we offer to our Father in heaven a solemn pledge of undivided love.

May we offer to our brothers and sisters a life poured out in loving service of that kingdom where you live with the Father and the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.
